American Coal Concerts

O utsiders are determined to end coal mining in Appalachia and, eventually, in the United States. Tens of thousands of jobs, and the stability of thousands of families and entire communities, are at risk. In support of coal, Coal News has released a brand new CD featuring international award-winning recording artist and songwriter Stella Parton, which she calls American Coal.

In conjunction with the release of this new CD, a series of American Coal Concerts are being arranged throughout the country. The American Coal Concert series contains heartwarming and passionate coal mining songs and the concert traces the history of coal, its importance to the nation, as well as the role of coal in the community.

During the performance there is an appeal from the stage to those attending to sign-up to support coal on a number of websites. Stella Parton is available during most of 2010 to perform her American Coal Concert at coal meetings, as well as fairs, festivals, picnics, in theaters, and other events.
